

The LSG Sky Chefs Environmental Policy

Our Mission

LSG Sky Chefs is a worldwide airline catering company and provider of complete above-the-wing solutions. This policy complements guidelines and principles to our global strategy designed to keep a healthy balance between business and the environment.

Our Environmental Guidelines

Based on the Lufthansa Group Environmental Guidelines we strive for the following:

1. We are a caretaker of our customer's environmental issues.

That means that we support our customers with an exchange of relevant information and know-how. We assist them in creating eco-friendly service and product concepts.

2. We strive to continuously optimize our energy, water and materials consumption.

From design to procurement, from production to customer use and disposal, from building new facilities to vacating sites, all of our business units will consider their impact on the environment in every process area of their activities and recycle – wherever possible.

3. We aim for environmental co-operation with our business partners.

Beginning with key suppliers and customers, we want to identify bilateral possibilities for environmental improvement. We prefer business partners that act accordingly and integrate customer requirements in our objectives. This requires partnership and mutual confidence.

Key Elements of our Environmental Management

We regard the following as essential for our environmental management:

- Availability of an internal organization to manage our environmental system.
- Divisional and regional environmental programs based on this policy to reflect organizational, cultural and legal diversity.
- The setting of targets to analyse our environmental performance to be measured by key performance indicators such as energy per m² and water per meal.
- Appropriate communication and annual environmental reporting to inform our customers, employees and the public about our environmental performance.

Our Commitment

In implementing these guidelines we pursue the following objectives:

- The prevention of pollution and reduction of our environmental footprint.
- Continuous improvement of our environmental performance.
- Compliance with the environmental legislation.

The Global Board is committed to this policy. It will

- give full support to all those authorized to carry it out.
- inform management, staff and interested public about it.
- periodically review it to ensure adequacy and effectiveness.
